HELPS TO STUDY
Lk. 9:51. "that he should be received up" leave the earth for heaven, the corresponding verb is used in Mk. 16:19; Acts 1:2, 11, 22 of the ascension. Luke looks beyond the death and resurrection to the ascension and includes the former in the latter. The incident which occurred in the Samaritan village shows that a part of this journey was made through Samaria. Neither Matthew nor Mark mentions the Samaritan incident.

The fact that they had to provide him a place of lodging, Mk. 6:10, indicates that there was quite a company traveling with him. The fact that he shortly sent out seventy disciples indicates the same, hence we consider the journey in Jno. 7:10 a different one. As a homeless wanderer, made so, however, not by absolute poverty, but by the necessities of his mission.

V. 50. The general meaning of this verse is that the kingdom of heaven always has the first claim and there are circumstances which render the duty of preaching the kingdom so imperative that not only the other wise imperative duty of showing respect to one's aged or deceased parents can stand in the way of such service. Lesser duties can be left to those who have heard no such voice of duty; those who are still spiritually dead. V. 61. "Go bid farewell," to linger a little longer before taking the final step, the outcome of which would probably have been that his mission to follow Jesus would have disappeared. In these verses we have three disciples with their excuses. To the first of these, who was in danger of taking impulsively a step the significance of which he had not considered, Jesus points out the cost and seriousness of discipleship, to the second, its paramount claim to the third, the danger of irresolution and the need of prompt decisive choice.

Lk. 10:1-14. Seventy others, two and two, into every city and village, whether he himself was about to come. This sentence makes it clear that Jesus planned quite an extensive evangelistic tour, intending himself to visit not less than thirty towns, probably more. Where these towns were Luke does not say, other than that they were between Galilee and Jerusalem. Probably many, perhaps most of them, lay in Persia, as Matthew suggests, or in Judea and Perea, as Mark implies. This was the one territory inhabited by Jews in which Jesus had not yet done little or no work. Knowing that the end of his life would be a phase, a tour which shall reach as fully as may be the one remnant of the world of Palestine. We note in these Scriptures the character of the severe and gentle character of Jesus.

THE TEACHER'S TRAINING

- I. To know: 1. Of the Bible, a. Its structure, b. Evidence of its divine origin, c. Evidence of its inspiration, d. Historical basis of the Bible, e. Bible geography, f. Portion of the Bible, g. Principles of Bible interpretation, h. Manners and customs of the Bible.
- II. To teach: 1. Of pedagogy or teaching, a. Best method of instruction, b. The mind and soul which we teach, c. Inexperience.
- III. To practice: 1. Of God's providential care and discipline in life, 2. Of the Spirit's work in our heart.
- IV. To study with a view of teaching: 1. In teaching, 2. In training.

THE BIBLE, Subdivisions. The Bible was divided into chapters, A. D. 1250, by Hugo de Sancto Caro a Spaniard. The New Testament was divided into verses, A. D. 1551, by Robert Stevens, an Englishman. The Old Testament was divided into verses, A. D. 1661, by Athias, a Jewish writer. The titles and captions of chapters are not inspired. Italicized words are put in to supply the sense where the word is wanting in the original. The historical, doctrinal and prophetic is the natural order of all the Bible, that which is second, that which ought to be third, that which shall be. It pleased God to begin his book in the realm of reality, that to build the realm of duty upon that to give glimpses of coming.

Albert T. Patrick.

New York, March 30. —Four years after the date on which he was convicted of the murder of Wm. Marsh Rice, the Texas millionaire, Albert T. Patrick's plea that an actual test be made to prove or disprove his contention that embalming fluid and not chloroform was the cause of the condition of Rice's body, was granted today. It was the office of District Attorney Jerome which had undertaken the investigation.

It was announced from District Attorney Jerome's office today that experiments to test Patrick's theory were begun under the direction of that office. Two persons whose bodies will be used either to aid in giving Patrick his liberty or defeat his efforts to secure a new trial, are patients who died in the Metropolitan hospital a few days ago, and the disposition of whose bodies are under the control of Dr. Louis Schultz, of the Charities department of the city, who assigns them for that purpose. They are aged 56 and 70. One is older and the other is younger than Rice.

The bodies will be embalmed with the same sort of fluid used in Rice's case. After a suitable time expires autopsies will be performed.

The Richest Man in the World.

The richest man in the world, one who has his kidneys replaced, nor live without them, so it is important not to neglect these organs. If Foley's Kidney Cure is taken at the first sign of danger, the symptoms will disappear and your health will be restored, as it strengthens and builds up these organs as nothing else will. Oscar Bowman, Lebanon, Ky., writes: "I have used Foley's Kidney Cure and take great pleasure in stating it cured me permanently of kidney disease, which certainly would have cost me my life."

Million Dollar Tow.

One of the most valuable tows which has ever been trusted to the care of a single towboat passed the point on Wednesday, when the Pacific No. 2 swept by. The tow consists of twenty-five barges of mixed iron and steel products in addition to several barges of oil and a big electric motor. The value of the tow is variously estimated at from $750,000 to $1,000,000.

The Original.

Foley & Co., Chicago, originate Honey and Tar as a throat and lung remedy and on account of the great merit and popularity of Foley's Honey and Tar many imitations are offered for the genuine. These worthless imitations have sinister sounding names. Beware of them. The genuine Foley's Honey and Tar is in a yellow package. Ask for it and refuse any substitute. It is the best remedy for coughs and colds. Woods & Orme.

Murdered His Wife.

Greensboro, N. C. March 30. —After a jury had deliberated for thirteen hours Saturday, Dr. J. B. Matthews was convicted of having murdered his wife, by injecting strichnine into her leg, as he pretended to be praying at her bedside. Guilty of murder in the second degree was the verdict, and Judge Ferguson sentenced the prisoner to the penitentiary for a term of 20 years.

Cured Hemorrhages of the Lungs.

"Several years since my lungs were so badly affected that I had many hemorrhages," writes A. M. Ake, of Wood, Ind. "I took treatment with several physicians without any benefit. I then started to take Foley's Honey and Tar and my lungs are now as sound as a bell. I recommend it in advanced stages of lung trouble. Foley's Honey and Tar stops the cough and heals the lungs and prevents serious results from a cold. Refuse substitutes. Woods & Orme."

Nervous Worn-Out

If you are in this condition, your nerve force is weak—the power is giving out, the organs of your body have "slowed up," and do their work imperfectly. This failure to do the work required, clogs the system and brings distress and disease. When the nerves are weak the heart is unable to force the life-giving blood through your veins; the stomach fails to digest food; the kidneys lack power to filter impurities from the blood, and the poisonous waste remains in the system to breed disease. Nerve energy must be restored. Dr. Miles' Nerve will do it, because it strengthens the nerves; it is a nerve medicine and tonic, that rebuilds the entire nervous system.

"Several years ago I was broken down. I was nervous, worn-out, could not sleep, and was in constant pain. I doctored for months, and finally the doctor said he could do nothing for me. I began taking Dr. Miles' Nerve, and used altogether eight bottles, and I became strong and healthy, and now weigh 170 pounds."

H. C. CUNNE, GHAM, 108 Ellsworth Ave., Allegheny, Pa.

Dr. Miles' Nerve is sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. If it fails, he will refund your money.

The day is longer on the north pole than on the south of the equator. At the North Pole, the days are about four months long. The longest day at London is sixteen hours and a half; at Stockholm, eighteen hours and a half; at Hamburg, seventeen hours; at St. Petersburg, the longest day has eighteen hours and a half; at Toronto, the longest day has twenty-one hours and a half; at Spitzbergen the longest day is three months and a half.

MOST BEAUTIFUL WOMAN.

MRS. WALTER FARWELL OF
CHICAGO AND WASHINGTON
IS HOLDING THE HONOR.Is Daughter of the Wife of Stephen A.
Douglass, Herself a Famous Belle,
Husband's Father Began Life a Poor Boy.

Who is the most beautiful woman in America? This was the question recently propounded in connection with the preparation of a beauty book which was destined to sell at something like twenty-five dollars per copy. It was intended to present in the expensive volume portraits of the handsomest women in each of the principal American cities but one number of the fair sex was to be selected as preeminently the most beautiful creature in Miss Columbia's domain.

Naturally there was great rivalry for the honor and the persons who sat in judgment upon the photographs of beautiful women which were exhibited in the contest had a rather difficult time to reach a decision. Finally, the choice fell upon Mrs. Walter Farwell of Washington, D. C. and Chicago who was a bride of but a few months when the contest was decided in her favor. In arriving at a decision the judges studied the features of each subject critically just as a por-

Miss Mildred Williams was a great belle from the very day that she made her first formal bow to the social world. To be sure she had no dowry but her own marvelous beauty but she made what the gossips pronounced a "great catch" when she married Walter Farwell of Chicago, one of the most prominent young millionaires of the Windy City.

Started with $10 Capital.

Young Farwell is the son of ex-Senator Farwell who started in life as a poor boy at Painted Post, New York, later removing to Illinois and eventually going to Chicago on a load of wheat with but $10 in his pocket. He secured employment in the county clerk's office, later became teller of a bank and finally established with his brother the great dry goods business which to this day causes the name of Farwell to be well known in mercantile circles. In 1887 the Farwell brothers built the Texas State Capitol receiving in payment therefor more than 2,000,000 acres of land. Much of this land they sold but considerable holdings of it went to form a gigantic ranch which was stocked with 150,000 cattle and helped materially to swell the Farwell fortune.

Both of ex-Senator Farwell's daughters married men well known to the public so that the beautiful Mrs. Walter Farwell has two very prominent sisters-in-law, one is Mrs. Reinhold De Koven, wife of the well known com-

WORKING TO SECURE PLEDGES
FOR THE PRESIDENTIAL NOM-INATION IN 1908.Is Sure of Indiana Delegation—Is Also Counting on Illinois, and Thinks Chances Good in Ohio—At Work in South.

Vice-President Fairbanks is 6 feet, 3 inches in height, the tallest man in the Senate. He is also looming up pretty tall as a presidential candidate for 1908.

Unless other candidates bestir themselves, Mr. Fairbanks will at no distant day have a sufficient number of delegates needed to make him the most formidable candidate for the nomination.

Mr. Fairbanks has had the Presidential bee in his bonnet for many years. He was a great favorite of President McKinley, and many persons believe that Mr. McKinley desired to see Mr. Fairbanks succeed him in the Presidential chair.

There have recently been long conferences between Indiana politicians, Fairbanks, and his friends, and it is good reason to believe that a great deal has been accomplished in the way of perfecting the organization formed for the purpose of securing the Republican nomination for Indiana's son two years hence.

Beveridge is in Line.

Everything is said to be lovely for Mr. Fairbanks in Indiana. He has secured the support of the Republican party there, headed by the youthful Senator Beveridge, who is understood to have responded so readily to the treatment applied that he now gives three cheers every time the name of Fairbanks is mentioned in his presence. Senator Beveridge is no longer in a position to hamper the progress of the Fairbanks boom in Indiana. In the tactical fight over the State chairmanship, Mr. Beveridge suffered an ignominious rout, and even if he does not team with Mr. Fairbanks in the future, he will not actively oppose him.

Following Senator Hanna's Methods.

In his campaign to secure delegates for William McKinley in 1896, Marcus A. Hanna began his operations in the South. He had secretly nailed down that section before the representatives of other candidates had begun to work. Mr. Hanna enlisted in the cause a number of young men, who went out looking for delegates and got them. Mr. Fairbanks knows something about the methods of Mr. Hanna, and his representatives are now treating with leading party men in the South. While the Republican party in the South is short on votes on election day, it is long on delegates in the national convention. This fact is keenly appreciated by Mr. Fairbanks.

Chances in Illinois.

The Vice-President is certain of Indiana's delegates, and he is counting upon Illinois. His fortunes in that State are in the hands of Charles G. Dawes, former Comptroller of the Currency, one of Mr. Hanna's "young men" in the pre-convention campaign made in the interest of the candidacy of Mr. McKinley. Fairbanks had strong and influential friends in Illinois and his chances of securing the delegation from that State are probably better than those of any other man who has been mentioned for the Presidential nomination, with the exception of Speaker Cannon. Mr. Dawes is understood to be the western manager of the Fairbanks boom. At least, such a report was circulated recently, and it has never been denied.

The Vice-President and his friends profess to believe the next standard bearer of the Republican party will be a western man. Ohio has two favorite sons in the persons of Secretary Taft and Senator Foraker. Both are very strong in Ohio and both are widely and favorably known throughout the country. The Fairbanks men believe that the rivalry of Taft and Foraker will prevent either of them securing the united support of Ohio's delegation to the next convention. Therefore, Fairbanks is flinging on the Buckeye state. Some of the Hoosier's friends are very enthusiastic, and to hear them one would think that the formalities of a nominating convention and an election might just as well be dispensed with.

Of course if Mr. Roosevelt should run for reelection, as it is being prominently argued that he will, notwithstanding his publicly expressed attitude against another term, it is admitted that he would be the practically unanimous choice for nomination and the work of the Fairbanks party would have been in vain.

INDIA'S RICHEST POTENTATE.

He Owns a Carpet Made of Precious
Gems and Diamonds and Rubies
by the Bushel.

During the stay of the Prince and Princess of Wales in India they will doubtless meet and be entertained by a personage who has every reason to be regarded as the richest of men in the Orient, if not in the whole world.

This is the Galkwar (or Rajah) of Baroda, a potentate who well illustrates Milton's famous line concerning the "barbaric pearl and gold" which the "gorgeous East" showers on its kings. No doubt, in point of annual income, there are richer men—Mr. John D. Rockefeller, for instance—but, from the standpoint of personal possessions the Galkwar probably has no rival in the world.

When he came to the throne some twenty-five years ago the present ruler of Baroda found stored in the vaults of his palace wealth so colossal that a description of it outdoes the "Arabian Nights" itself. Certainly Aladdin never thought of a carpet of jewels, such as the Galkwar possesses. To say that there is nothing like it in the world is only feebly to describe its glories, which can be better indicated by the statement that it is about four yards square and composed of ropes of rubies, diamonds, pearls, woven into a regular carpet well-defined pattern and border. Thousands of dollars' worth of jewels, every one of the finest quality, went to make up this wondrous carpet, the product of three years' work by skilled artists and jewel-setters.

Now, if the Galkwar of Baroda were only moderately wealthy, this monarch of carpets would doubtless occupy the place of honor in his palace. But as he possesses jewels enough to set up a dozen ordinary monarchs the jeweled tapestry occupies an odd corner, and is shown to visitors as merely one of the treasures of the palace.

Less of a curiosity, but far more valuable, is the Galkwar's diamond necklace, a trinket the value of which several times make a man a millionaire. This necklace is the most magnificent in existence. And even the honor of possessing the second finest is denied to the rest of the world, for it also is amongst the Galkwar's family jewels, being worn by his wife, who is, besides, dowered with brooches, bracelets, rings and other ornaments, the value of which is computed in millions of dollars.

Another notable ornament worn by the Galkwar is a collar made of five hundred diamonds of the purest water, which includes in its glittering rows the famous "Star of the South," the fourth largest diamond in the world.

Such a dazzling collection—such a "welter" of jewels—was, needless to say, not made in a single life-time. For centuries the Galkwar's ancestors have been accumulating their treasures, until to-day the jewels alone could be measured in bushels. As for the rest, there are pictures in bronzes and statuary to the value of several millions of money.

A royal procession in Baroda is worth going many miles to see. Horses and elephants, all splendidly caparisoned and blazing with gems, lead the way; but the cynosure of all eyes is the Galkwar, not merely because of his person, but also by reason of the stupendous wealth represented by the jewels with which he adorns himself.

He is, perhaps, the one man in the world who could wear that mammoth amongst gems, the great Premier Diamond, without incongruity.

Sleeping Car Acquaintances.

Representative Smith of Maryland is the subject of a good story these days. When he hears it he merely smiles and looks wise. Mr. Smith, the little narrative says, was standing a few days ago in front of the White House talking to two Secret Service men, when a boy came dashing out of the Executive Mansion.

"Who's that?" queried the Congressman.

"That's Archibald Roosevelt," he was informed.

A moment later another youngster appeared through the same door and Mr. Smith repeated his question.

"That's Kernal," said one of the guards.

Just then a third boy came swirling along on roller skates.

"I guess that's another one of the Roosevelts," suggested the man from Maryland.

"Yes," was the answer, "That's Quentin."

"By gum," commented Mr. Smith, "they've all got names like sleeping cars. I feel just as if I were standing on the station platform at home watching the limited express shoot by."

WEIRD SCENE AMONG THE SOUTHERN COLORED BAP-TISTS—FEET WASHING.Third Letter of Account of Trip into the Sunny Southland.—Interesting Visits to Jacksonville, Savannah and Richmond.

The first Sunday we spent in Enlists we drove to Lake Gracie, just in the rear of the hotel grounds, to witness the Baptist colored immersion. It was a perfect June morning, with settings of pure gold. It did not seem possible that it was windy March at home. The orange groves reached down to the very edge of the lake, which lay placed, like a mirror. Several of the guests rowed across from the hotel to witness the ceremony. Presently the preacher, followed by his candidates and flock, came through the woods singing one of their will refrains. A few words from the Good Book, a prayer, all kneeling, and then an exhortation delivered with much vigor. The baptism was quietly performed with the exception of the case of one of the sister candidates who felt so happy that two men were obliged to carry her out of the water. In the evening we all drove to Egypt, the colored settlement, and I never in my life attended such a service. It was the first Sunday in March, which is a high day in the church—"The Primitive Baptist." The church building is a little wooden structure with bare benches along each side and a rough table in front of a box of a pulpit. When we entered, a prayer meeting was being held. As many of the native congregation cannot read, the hymns are lined, two lines at a time—and such strange music I never heard. They don't seem to sing the words; it is just a loud monotonous refrain, and was perfectly deafening in that small building. The prayers were mostly ejaculations to the Lord, accompanied with clapping of hands and loud expressions from all the brothers and sisters. The sermon was the most rambling discourse imaginable, beginning with Genesis and ending in Revelation, accompanied with vigorous ranting of face, arms and legs. Then the darkies screamed and yelled at the top of their voices and during all of which one of the sisters got "happy" and surged over into another seat, screaming and jumping up and down. Several huson sisters held her until she became quiet. Then the collection was taken up, each one going up to the table and laying his money on was attired in a white and gray cotton mother Hubbard gown tied around the waist with a white apron, around her neck she wore a black fur collar, and on her head a very broad brimmed black hat turned up on one side in a jaunty manner. This colored lady, weighing 285 pounds, as I was told, proceeded to set the communion table. From his chair in the pulpit, the minister called out, "Let us know, sister, when you are ready, and we'll begin business." "All right," responded Aunt Savannah cheerfully, "I'm ready." Then right in the midst of the service another woman became happy, jumping over in the seat back of her directly among the women and babies, and I don't know why the babies were not killed. Such a scattering I never saw before. Pandemonium reigned, but all the time the plate of bread was being passed.

Washing Their Feet.

Then came the "foot washing." Two ten-cent basins were placed on the table, the men and women took off their shoes and stockings; the preacher washed the first elder's feet, wiping them with the towel which was girdled around his waist; then passed the basin and towel to the elder, who washed the next one's feet, and so on until all were done. Aunt Savannah then began a like ceremony on the sister's side of the church; and all the time the dreadful singing, shouting, clapping of hands, stamping of washed and unwashed feet continued in a deafening racket. Finally the table was tak-

The Lilies of the Chancel

An Easter Story

By Elizabeth Vore

From Sunset

A stretch of azure sky, changing to the opal tints of evening, a smiling expanse of sea, with a long line of curling breakers flashing the sandy beach—that is what Rosa might have seen as she stood by the calla lily hedge, with the faint breeze stirring the magnolia blossoms.

Yet it is doubtful if she saw anything. Her eyes held a dreamy far away look, and the waving green branches outlined like lacework against the evening sky, the white ruffled stretch of sea and the tints of the wilderness of bloom were not upon her.

In her arms was a profusion of lilies, spray upon spray, almost more than her slender arms could carry, for the narrow was Easter day. Tall and stately as a lily herself, Rosa stood, but in meditation, her face scarcely less fair and pure than the waxen blossoms, and as colorless, save for the scarlet mouth with its languid curves. A pure, proud face was hers, and cold as the white roses that, like a distant squadron, were steadily marching in from the sea.

On the still, languorous air, and heavy a clear, sweet note rang out—the chiming of the old isolation bells. The sacred music reached Rosa's ears, arousing her from her reverie. The engaging one slender hand she made the sign of the cross; her lips moved silently.

There was a sound near at hand of slow, falling footsteps. A man, young, but of haggard countenance, was approaching under the shadow of the awnings.

Rosa only heard the vesper rhymes.

Nearer the man drew until he stood humbly before her, his head bowed, his shabby hat in his trembling hand. He raised his eyes, full of dumb supplication to her face. The passionate love and despair of a tortured soul was in them. He gazed motionless, as on awailing his sentence.

Swam and back the chiming of the bells arose and fell. Something like a soft escaped the man's lips. His thin, brown fingers worked convulsively.

thy sake that I—" he checked himself suddenly—"and the saints alone know how hard, how unjust," he flashed out. "I have been my lot, and a man may repent, Rosa."

"I saw thee drinking in the piazza last yesterday," she said coldly, "is that thy repentance?"

"It is killing me, adorable, every hand is against me. I am weak, unworthy, but I can forget in no other way."

"Thou hast come here against my command—see that thou dost not repeat it," said Rosa in icy tones. "And now go, for I would hasten to the church to carry my flowers for the chancel."

He raised his eyes imploringly to her face.

"Madre de Dios, I am in purgatory. Thou art so far above me—like the saints, Rosa! Rosa! I am unfit to touch thee—yet, I am going away forever. Give me one of thy lilies—only one, Rosa, because they are, like thou art, no pure as the angels of God."

He reached out his hand timidly, but Rosa drew back as if his touch were profanation.

"They are sacred lilies," she said, coldly. "I have come to spare. They are for the chancel—to be placed upon the altar. A thief may not touch them."

He whined and shrank away. He could not know that her hands were clenched with the nails made cruel marks in her tender palms. He only saw the stern, accusing eyes and heard the pitiless words that fell, like molten fire, and scorched these lives into his soul.

As one who had received a mortal stab, he turned and walked despondently away.

It was Easter day in the land of perpetual bloom, where winter is autumn and summer is paradise. In the early morning, as the gray curtain of fog rolled back to the sea, and the sun, a disk of golden flame, batted sea and sky in a flood of glory, Rosa wandered her way to the chapel to add the last touches to the decorations for the Easter service.

the outcast, the despised, the heart-broken?

Suddenly his eyes caught the white gleam of waxen blossoms upon his breast; a great awe entered his face. "Jesu Maria," he murmured. "The lilies of the chancel."

"Nay, but thine own, Diego mio," said Rosa, brokenly. Her arms were about him, her tears were upon his face. "Thine own, adorable," she whispered tremulously; "all thine—the lilies of Diego, I have robbed the altar for thy dear sake."

"This is the day of resurrection," said the Padre, solemnly.

"Madre de Christo, the people muttered. "It is a miracle."

And it was—a miracle of love.

EASTER AT THE WHITE HOUSE.

Time Honored Practice of Letting the Children of Washington Roll Eggs on President's Grounds.

Easter Monday in Washington is an event in the lives of the children which is ahead of any other day in the year excepting Christmas and Fourth of July.

Why? Because Easter Monday means egg-rolling. For many years the little ones of Washington have congregated by the hundreds and thousands to roll eggs Easter Monday in the beautiful grounds surrounding the home of the President of the nation. There is no sign to keep off the grass and there are no restrictions. The children own the place. The green grass of the White House lawn is covered with children, children innumerable, rolling eggs on the grassy slopes.

If the day is pleasant it is a sight to be remembered. The children have been looking forward to the festival for days and weeks, and great has been their anticipation.

The sorrow and many the tears among the little ones if Easter Sunday should be cold and rainy with promise of a bad Monday. Yet no weather has ever been so bad as to keep everyone away from the White House grounds on egg-rolling day. There are many hardy little spirits who will not be daunted by snow or cold or rain when it comes to rolling eggs.

If the day is pleasant and the air balmy and the turf warm and green, what a time the children have. Such scenes as they invent to play with their eggs—scenes of Indian warfare containing infinite amazement. The grounds look more like a juvenile fair than anything else—an egg fair, and the little boys around Washington must needs have been very diligent for many days before. If the day is fair, too, the glorious Marine Band, the finest band in the country, plays sweet music, and the children dance and gambol to its strains. Truly it is children's day in Washington.

Wonderfully Colored Eggs.

By 9 o'clock in the morning the grounds are actually taken possession of by the youngsters, little kids with wicker baskets and varicolored eggs, wonderful eggs of green and blue and red and purple and gold and their own of lovely combination, and with beautiful designs, such as would make a who can cook her head on one side and wonder greatly what happens to her plain white eggs.

All sorts and conditions of children find their way to the President's grounds to enjoy Easter Monday. Some of the children are beautifully dressed in silks and lace and have their fathers to watch over them and carry their eggs for them, while the other children are dressed in very shabby garments with elbows out and torn up from their little shoes. They are all here, however, to enjoy the great egg-rolling festival. I have never before seen such ruggedness in mountains as the Federal Range presents. To climb up almost perpendicular grades means to slide down others before the objective point can be reached. I have been a prospector for ten years and have passed much of my time in the mountains of Alaska, Colorado and other places where there is gold. The Federal Range is the worst of any. I made up my mind that I would search for gold and copper in the foothills of the Federal Mountains. I was compelled to cross the range to get where I wished to go, and although I had no fear, there were nits when, in climbing, I did not dare to look back, but only kept right on.

Not Afraid of the Policeman.

It is a good natured crowd. The big policemen standing around possess no terror for the little ones on egg-rolling day. They know that all that the policemen are for on Easter, is to keep grown up people from interfering with the little ones who are rolling eggs. And when the little people get lost, and then, the big policemen are there to take them in charge and tell them not to cry until their mothers and fathers find them again. Then there are some rivalries among the children. Some of them are regular little gamblers. The little fellow goes and of a very hard egg and he goes and picks eggs with his acquaintances or acquaintances he finds, and thus their eggs from them until finally he strikes some other little fellow who has a harder egg than his, and the he loses a lot of eggs.

And some of the little rascals gamble on what is a "sure thing," with a blue egg, sleek and painted to resemble a genuine egg, or with a hen's egg, and full of plaster of paris they will go around, and of course win all the eggs they contest for, until some sharp little fellow finds out the game they are playing. As the day advances and the children get hungry, the point man and the popcorn man and the candy man at the gates do a thriving business, while at noon, many are the little groups under the trees, sitting around on blankets and shawls and eating lunches, for they are making a regular picnic of it and staying all day.

The Children of Presidents.

President Harrison's two grand children witnessed, with great enjoyment, the egg-rolling from the porch of the White House facing toward the Washington monument and looking past and across the Potomac to Arlington, the former home of General Lee, but where now are spread the silent tents of a vast host of the Union army who have passed across to the great beyond.

President Cleveland's two little girls, Ruth and Esther, were real little democrats. They took their own eggs and went out among the crowd of happy children, and they rolled eggs with the other children, as common clay as their associates, not the children of the President of the United States, but the children of an American citizen. Perhaps a little extra watch was kept over them, but they didn't know it and they thought that Easter Monday was the happiest day in their little lives.

The Roosevelt children are past the age of egg-rolling; but they enjoy with the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, watching the gay throng of youngsters who romp over the White House grounds on Easter Mondays.

There was a time, however, when the children of Washington did not roll eggs on the President's grounds. Not that they did not roll eggs though. Oh no! They have always rolled eggs on Easter Monday. But they used to roll them in the Capitol grounds, down the steep terrace which was on the west front of the Capitol. Then there came a time when the Capitol grounds were changed, and a big flight of steps built where the terrace used to be, and some day in Congress objected to the children romping on the smooth grass of the big square and rolling their eggs.

General Hayes was President then, and he heard of it, and how disappointed the children were because they had no place to roll their eggs that year, and the kindly man said: "Why let them roll their eggs on the White House grounds and enjoy themselves." And thus it has been ever since, from year to year.

BRAVED DEATH VALLEY.

Nevada Woman Penetrated Fastness for Wealth—Was Accompanied by Only Half Breed.

The weird Funeral Mountain of Death Valley, Nevada, are to yield rich findings of copper and gold ores as a result of the successful prospecting of Miss Lillian Malcolm, who it is stated, discovered these deposits on a ridge and towers three thousand feet in the air.

In making this find she was accompanied only by an Indian half-breed.

Once Lillian Malcolm, according to her story, crossed the Chilcot in Alaska, alone, in her search for gold. The railroad had not been built that has since minimized the difficulties of Alaskan travel in the Chilcot region. Miss Malcolm declares that the tour of the Funeral Mountains however was more hazardous than her lonely journey through the Chilcot, years ago.

"No white person has ever visited the spot where I viewed the great copper deposit until I made my way there," she said in a recent interview. "I have never before seen such ruggedness in mountains as the Federal Range presents. To climb up almost perpendicular grades means to slide down others before the objective point can be reached. I have been a prospector for ten years and have passed much of my time in the mountains of Alaska, Colorado and other places where there is gold. The Federal Range is the worst of any. I made up my mind that I would search for gold and copper in the foothills of the Federal Mountains. I was compelled to cross the range to get where I wished to go, and although I had no fear, there were nits when, in climbing, I did not dare to look back, but only kept right on."

"There were many places where a misstep meant sure death. All there was to do was to go head. Once started, there was no way to stop without confessing defeat. Finally I found what I was looking for. At first I could hardly believe my eyes. I had reached a point about twenty-five miles from the line of the Clark road and sixteen miles from the line of the Borax Smith road, when the ledge loomed up immovably."

"Then I was happy. I have studied mineralogy, geology, and other lines leading to mining, and I have done assessment work with my own hands in deep shafts. In short, my experience has been such that I believe that I am competent to know whether my mineral discoveries are valuable."

"The ledge stands up clearly from fifty to seventy-five feet, with both gold and copper in it—but more copper than gold. Millions maybe there in easy reach—a quantity that I believe is almost beyond ordinary computation. If I am not mistaken the discovery is valuable not only for its richness but also because it opens up knowledge of an entirely new copper belt in the Death Valley."

Picturesqueness is added to Miss Malcolm's trip by the fact that the Indian half-breed that she took into the desert where so many strong men have died is "Hill Kee," who is "Scotty's" friend. This Indian is a good guide.

The next step that Lillian Malcolm contemplates is that of informing the railroad builders, now constructing lines into the mineralized regions of Nevada, of the topographical features of the country to be crossed in order to bring her copper and gold discoveries reasonably within transportation facilities, and the place that formerly required weeks for her to reach, will soon be made accessible, when the present railroading surveys are carried out in rails. There is plenty of timber in the Panamint Mountains that can be utilized for mining purposes, and the foot of the steam whistle may yet be heard in the fearful fastnesses of desolation that have so long appalled stout-hearted men, only to be conquered finally by a woman in search of precious metals.

POMPEII, THE VALIANT.

Story of the Hero of a Hundred Bad Runaways.

Pompeii, of the New York mounted police squad, and one of the most intelligent members of the force, was retired from active service the other day. When the stroke of the hammer put the big lay out of service, he was saved from the ragman's cart and night hawk cab by the devotion of his fifteen-year friend and comrade, Mounted Policeman Redmond P. Kersey, of the West 132d street police station.

Pompeii had spent nearly twenty years in the service and knew the rules of the department better than many a roundsman. He was the show horse of the force. Catching runaways was his business, but mathematics was his diversion. He could add, subtract, divide and multiply, and for years had been a source of delight to the school children along Seventh Avenue, where he was on duty between 110th and 152d streets.

The children would gather around Pompeii in the afternoons and talk to him.

Good at Mental Arithmetic.

When a sum in arithmetic was given him Pompeii would listen attentively to the figures, ponder over them for a moment, and then announce the answer by striking the ground with his left forefoot. If the answer was the half of something Pompeii indicated it by bending his foreleg at the knee and holding it for a moment. His friends insist that he could tell time by looking at a watch and announce the hour and half hour in the same way as he did his sums.

Playing with the children was by no means the best part of Pompeii's service. The records show that he and his master have stopped more than a hundred runaways in the last fifteen years. In several instances lives were saved. Policeman Kersey and Pompeii have been almost inseparable ever since the latter joined the force. Again and again the comrades were parted for a short time when Kersey was transferred from one precinct to another, but each time the policeman managed to have his favorite sent after him.

Hurt While Stopping Runaway.

A short time before the arrival of Prince Henry in New York, Pompeii was badly hurt while stopping a runaway at Seventh Avenue and 125th street. Two days later, while acting as a guide for the Prince some dirt got in the wound and blood poisoning set in. Kersey managed to get placed on reserve duty and gave all his time to nursing Pompeii back to health. The police veterinary condemned the horse as unfit for duty, but Kersey managed to evade the decision for a few days. Then Pompeii made a spectacular run along the avenue and stopped a bad runaway in such style that nothing more was said about retirement.

The fatal day was only put off, however, and last month the big bay was sold at auction at the stables of the West 132d street station. Kersey was on hand with $400, all the ready money he could scrape together, determined not to be separated from his old friend.

Hurt While Stopping Runaway.

Kersey himself bears some scars gained in the fierce rushes he has made with Pompeii. Five years ago his right leg was broken in two places, and two years ago his neck was wrenched and his skull nearly smashed in. Both injuries were received while with Pompeii's aid he was stopping dangerous runaways.

Only one man had the heart to bid against Kersey so he ransomed his old friend for $50, about twice what he was worth said the veterinary.

Then Kersey started on a vacation. When last heard from he was spending it on a bit of a farm he has at Rye, N. Y., and with him went Pompeii, happy in his last transfer.
